Harvard College 1810, Surgeon U. S. Army, member American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia, Surgeon's mate 9th Regiment U. S. Infantry Dec. 2d, 1812, when he joined his regiment in winter quarters at Burlington, Vt. Surgeon June 30th, 1814. At the end of the war retained

one among the ten out of forty for the peace establishment. In the spring of 1813 went with his regiment to Sackett's Harbor and afterwards to Niagara, N. Y., and participated in the capture of Fort George and in the actions of Chrysler's Fields. In the spring of 1814 he accompanied the Ninth from its winter quarters at French Mills, now Fort Covington, to the Niagara frontier. This regiment, forming a part of Scott's brigade, was the first to land on the Canadian shore, under the fire of the enemy, on the night of the 3d of July, 1814; and was in the leading boat conveying the regimental field and staff, also Genl. Winfield Scott and staff, and was on the New York frontier until the end of the war. He participated in the entire campaign of 1814 on the Niagara frontier, having been engaged in the battles of Chippewa, Lundy's Lane, and the assault by the British on Fort Erie. After nine or ten years service on the frontier, the two last on the upper Missouri, he was placed on special duty in the harbor of New York, and charged with the various duties pertaining to the station, where, with occasional absences on duty, he continued until his death. In 1833 and 1834 he travelled under orders more than 12,000 miles as a member of a medical board of examination and inspection, visiting most of our military posts southwest and northwest of New York. Was a member of every medical board except one that was convened from 1832 to 1851, and, with the above exception and one other, was the presiding member. To the operation of these boards the present efficiency and high standing of the medical staff are mainly attributable. In 1818 he received the degree of Doctor of Medicine from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City. In 1844 he was elected a member of the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia, over which in turn Franklin and Jefferson had presided. At his death and for many years previous, he was the senior Surgeon U. S. Army and chief Medical Purveyor in New York City. The largest hospital erected during the civil war was at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, and was named after him. A model of which, with his portrait, was exhibited at the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876, and both are now in the U. S. Army Medical Museum and Library in Washington, D. C.

Thomas Ephraim, graduated at Yale College in 1878, lived in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Litchfield, Conn., until 1888, when he, with his brothers John and William, also became interested in the Mine Hill Stone Quarries at Roxbury, Conn. In 1890-91 he was the Roxbury representative in the General Assembly of Connecticut. Nov. 29th, 1892, he married Jessie Frances Burritt, born July 10th, 1857, died _____, daughter of Austin D. and Julia L. Burritt, and has one child, Robert Lefferts, born April 24th, 1895.
